The Last Sixpence.

It was on a chill, bleak morning in November that Charles Aubrey emerged from an old shed where he had passed the last part of the night under a pile of sheep skins. He was a young man not over two and twenty, and yet retained great beauty of person, though his clothes were torn and dirty, his face pale and haggard. Only one year before he had been left an orphan, with eleven thousand dollars in money in his possession. He had always been a generous-hearted, frank, and loving companion, but evil associations had gathered about him, and in an unfortunate hour he gave himself up to their influence. He thought not of the value of money, but designing knaves, under the guise of friendship, could always draw it from him. But the poor, misguied youth had run the race, and was not alone. His money was gone, aud his sunshine companions had left him. He had reached the goal towards which for a whole year he had been dashing on.

"Ah, Charley, Charley," he murmured to himself, "you've run your race.—Where now are the friends who have so long hung about you? One poor sixpence! It will buy me one glass of grog to allay my burning thirst. O, would to God it would buy me one true friend!"

He spoke thus, and with the words came rushing through his mind the memory of the past. He remembered his mother as she held him the last time to her bosom and blessed him; and he remembered when he saw them cover her body up in the warm flowery summer, not many years ago. He remembered his kind, good, father, and how that father had loved him and blessed him with his last breath. And he remembered one other, a bright-eyed, joyous girl, in whose keeping he had once placed all his hopes of joy. Thus he stood, with the small coin in his hand, when he heard footsteps approaching. He raised his eyes, and beheld an old woman, with bended back, who came tottering on slowly and trembling. Her garments were torn and tattered, and the thin gray hair hung matted and uncombed She stooped when she came to where the youth stood, and leaned heavily upon her staff.

"Charity, good sir!" she uttered, in hoarse, tremulous tone. "Give wherewith to purchase a single meal, and I'll ask God to bless thee."

"By my life, good woman, you are the very one that I have been wishing for—Here—it is all that I have—it is my last sixpence. Take it, I have only wished that it could buy me one true friend.

The old woman hesitated.

"Will you take it?" asked Charles, earnestly. "Take it, so that I may feel that I have one friend."

"I need it, sir," the woman said," but I dare not take it from you, for you would not profit by my friendship."

"Yes I would. It would send a ray of sunshine through my soul to know that one human being blessed me."

"But what good could come of that while you continue to curse yourself?"

The youth started but he spoke not.

"If you would have me as a friend, will you listen to me as a friend?"

"Listen? yes."

"Then let this be your lowest vale of life," said the woman, with startling solemity. "Turn now and go up hill.—Go up, once more. I knew your mother, Charles Aubrey, and I remember well how kind she was. O, did she ever think that her son would sink so low?"

"Stop, stop," groaned the unhappy youth "O, who shall give me the first lift to regain what I have lost?"

"I will."

"You? Who are you? You say you knew my mother. Who are you?"

"Never mind. Suffice it for you to know that I have suffered as deeply as you ever did. I know what it is to suffer. I say I can give you the first lift. I mean by that I can show you the way. Follow my counsel, and you may yet recover all that you have lost."

"No, no, not all. O, there is one loss I can never make up!"

And as he spoke he bowed his head and covered his face with his hands.

"Let not such feelings be with you now. First resolve that you will turn from the evil that has brought you down. You know what it is as well as I do.—Can you do this?"

"But, I had done this ere you came up."

"Then take the next step. Go and make a friend who can help you further. Go to Amos Williams and—"

"No, no, not there. O, not there," interrupted Charles.

"Go to his store and freely confess to him all your faults," resumed the woman, without seeming to notice the interruption. "Tell him all, and ask him to trust you once more."

"No, no, I dare not go to him."

"But listen. I heard Mr. Williams say with his own lips that he would give you his hand if you would only help yourself."

"Did he say that?" uttered Charles, eagerly.

"He did. And now, Charles Aubrey, be assured that you have not lost everything. Let people know that yon mean to arise and be a man, and all whose friendship is worth having will give you their hands. Go to Amos Williams first."

"I will go."

"Then give me the sixpence."

* * * * * * *

Amos Williams stood at the great desk in his counting-room, and he was alone. While he thus stood, casting up a column of figures upon a page of one of the ledgers, the door was opened and Charles Aubrey entered. He was yet pale and haggard, and looked as he did when he saw him two hours ago. The merchants tarted with an utterance of pain and suprise as he recognized in the miserable form before him, the once happy and beloved youth whom he had delighted to honor.

"Charles," he uttered, as soon as he could command his speech, "why have you come here?"

"Mr. Williams," spoke the youth in a choking voice," "I have come to —to —tell you that my course of wikedness is run, and from this moment I am—a—"

Here he stopped. He hesitated a moment, and then his feelings overcame him, and bowing his head he burst into tears, and sobs, loud and deep, broke from his lips. The merchant was deeply affected, and with warm tears gathered thickly in his own eyes, he started forward and placed his hand upon the youth's head.

"Charles," he uttered in a tremulous, eager voice, "have you resolved to be a man?"

"With God's help I will be a man again!"

"Is your money all gone?"

"Yes, sir. This morning, I had one solitary sixpence left, and that I gave to a poor old woman who bade me to come here."

"Aye, I know her. She is an unfortunate creature, and has suffered much. I bade her, if she saw you, and you were cast down and repentant, to send you here, for I heard yesterday that you were at the foot of the precipice. Now, if you are determined, you shall not want for help."

In eager, broken, sobbing, sentences, Charles poured out thanks, and stated the resolutions he had taken.

"And, now," said Mr. Williams, after it had been talked over some time, "we must find a place where you can recruit your strength a little before you try to work. There is my brrother who owns a farm out in M——, he wonld be glad to have you come there a while; and when you wholly recover your wasted strength you shall have a place here"

At first the youth refused to accept so much, for he new his unworthiness; but the merchant simply answered him:

"You can pay me for this if you choose, so you need not be delicate about it; and as for your unworthiness—when the lost ones of the earth are not worth redeeming, then some other standard of worth must be regarded than that simple one which Jesus of Nazareth gave to his followers.

So it was settled that Charles should go out into the country and remain a while. He fround Mr. Williams, the brother, ready and happy to receive him, and there he soon began to regain his health and spirits.

In two weeks he was as strong as ever, and at the end of a month the marks of dissipation had left his face. Then he returned to town, and entered the store. Amos Williams gave him a lucrative station, and bade him remember nothing of the past save the one great lesson he had learned.

"Charles," he said, "you know the widow Swan?"

"Yes, sir."

"Well, I have engaged board for you there. I hope the arrangements will suit you."

"Yes, sir," returned the youth with a strange emotion.

From that time Charles Aubrey went on nobly and truly in the path he had marked out. As soon as he again made his appearance in prosperity his old company flocked round him once more; but he repulsed them with a stern firmness that left them no hopes. Yes, for a month he was beset with temptations in every shape, but he hesitated not once. His mind was made up, and he made but one answer to all invitations to depart therefrom. Temptation became less frequent, and he was finally left to pursue his own course.

Little did Charles Aubrey know how closely he was watched. Mr. Williams knew his every move next to his prayer which he poured forth in the privacy of his own apartment. Thus passed away three months, and at the end of that time Mr. Williams called the young man in the counting-room one evening, after the rest of the people had gone.

"Well, Charles," the merchant resumed, "how would you like to change your boarding place?"

There was something in the look and tone of the man as he spoke these words that made the youth start. The blood rushed to his face, and anon he turned pale.

"If you would like," the merchant resumed in the same low strange tone, "you may come and board with me. I will not deceive you, Charles. Until I could be certain that you would entirely reform, I dared not carry you to my house. But I am satisfied now. I have not doubted you. but I would prove you.—And now if you please you may inform Mrs. Swan that you will board with her no more. She will not be disappointed, for I have spoken with her on the subject.'

With these words, Mr. Williams left the store, and as soon as Charles could recover from the strange emotions that almost overpowered him, he called for the porter to came and lock up, and then, having locked up the great safe, he took departure.

On the next morning he came to the store, and when his employer came he informed him that he had given his notice to Mrs. Swan.

"Very well," returned the merchant. "This evening, then, you will go home with me."

Evening came, and Charles Aubrey accompanied his old friend home. Tea was ready; the rest of the family had eaten an hour before. After tea Charles was conducted to the sitting-room, where lamps were burning, and where Mr. Williams informed him he could amuse himself by reading.

Charles sat down there, and his employer went out, but he could not read. His heart beat wildly in his bosom, and his soul was strangely worked upon. O, how natural everything there appeared. And many happy blissful hours he had passed in that same room. Thus he sat, when the door slowly opened,and a female appeared within the apartment. She was a bright-eyed, beautiful maiden, and when she first entered a happy smile was upon her face. But the smile faded away, and her lips trembled. She tried to speak, but she could not. She only stood there with her hands half extended, gazing tremblingly upon the youth. In a moment more her eyes were overrun with tears, and then Charles started up. He could doubt no more. Why else should he have been brought hither? why left thus? why placed on such probation? He hesitated no more. With one quick step he sprang forward, and without a word caught the fair girl to his bosom.

"Mary," he uttered, as he gazed into the sparkling eyes of the fair being who still clung to him, "you still love me—you forgive me all—and trust me once more?"

"Yes," she murmu.ed; and ere she could speak further, her father entered the room.

"Aha—so you've found him, have you, Mary?" he cried in a happy joyous tone.

"Mr. Williams," uttered Charles, still holding Mary by the hand, and speaking with difficulty, "I hope I am not deceived. O, you have not brought me here to kill me! You cannot have passed this cup to dash it away again!"

"Of course not," returned the merchant.

"But you must know now the whole truth, and for fear my child may not tell you all, I'll tell you myself. This noble girl has never ceased to love you, and when you were the lowest down she loved you the most. She came to me and asked me if she might save you if she could. I could not tell her nay, and she went to work. She has suffered much, and, Charles, it remains with you to decide whether her future shall be one of happiness or not. She knew that you were down, that your false friends had forsaken you. Then it was that her love grew bold and strong. She wondered if you would repulse her. She knew not what might be your feelings, and to save herself the pain of a direct repulse from you, she assumed a disguise, so that she might approach you without being known, and gain some idea of your feelings, and save you if she could. At any rate she has regained you to herself, and it must now be your own fault if the silken tie be loosed again."

With these words the father left the apartment.

"You, Mary? you in disguise?" queried Charles, as soon as he could speak.

"Aye, dear Charles: and you know why I did it. Here—do you not remember it?" and as she spoke she drew from her bosom a small silken purse, and took therefrom a sixpence.

The youth recognized it in an instant.

"Oh!" he cried as he drew the noble girl to his bosom, "what can I say? Mary—Mary—my own heart's truest love—let my life in years to come tell my gratitude. O, my all of life is yours, and my last breath shall bear your name in gratitude to god."

And Charles Aubrey never forgot his promise. With his noble companion by his side he traveled up the hill, and in his path the flowers of life grew thick and fragrant.

Upon the wall of his sitting room hangs a picture. It is a splendid painting of the Prodigal's return. Upon the face of a heavy gilt frame, visitors notice a small blemish, but which upon closer examination proves to be a small silver coin.—Our readers need not be told why that bit of metal is thus carefully preserved.

CIRCUMSTANCES ALTER CASER.—The Correspondent of the N. Y. Post, gives an incident in connection with the oil excitement in Pennsylvania. An old blacksmith bored in his back yard and struck a vein. He at once became a man of position. He had a daughter who had blossomed into maidenhood almost unnoticed and unknown, but had now become an object of interest to the few young men in that community. It at once became a question how to break the ice of former indifference, and to secure an acquaintance with the heiress of the oil well. One of the boldest of the young boys determined, however to try his luck, and one Sunday evening attired in his best, resolutely marched forward and offered to escort the damsel home. Imagine his chagrin when she, turning on him with a look of lofty independence that would have done honor to a Broadway belle, replied in a language more severe than chaste, "Git out! You can't come that! Dad has struck ile!!"

A "MIX."—A printer lately mixed an account of a preacher and a mad dog in the following first rate manner:

"The Rev. James Thompson, Rector of the St. Andrews Church, preached to a large concourse of people on Sunday last. This was his last sermon. In a few weeks he will bid farewell to his congregation, as his physicians advise him to cross the Atlantic. He exhorted his brethern and sisters, and after the expiration of a short prayer, took a whim to cut up some frantic freaks. He ran up Timothy street to Johnson, and down Benefit street to College. At this stage of proceedings, a couple of boys seized him, tied a tin kettle to his tail, and he again started. A great crowd collected, and for a time there was a grand scene of noise, running and confusion. After some trouble he was shot by a Jersey policeman."

NOVEL DAMAGES.—A lady in Philadelphia lately had a silk dress torn by hitching against a box on the side-walk in front of a store. She sued the storekeeper for damages, and though he proved he was occupying only so much of the side-walk as the law allowed him, and that the box had been there only an hour and a quarter, the Court gave judgment in favor of the plaintiff for five dollars and costs, thus legally diciding that everything out of doors must stand clear of hooped skirts.

PRENTICE ON HIS AGE.—Prentice, of the Louisville Journal, in noticing an article which recently appeared in the Philadelphia Press, on the Veterans of American Journalism, takes occasion to say: "Our friend is right in saying that we are not an old man. We are not yet in the winter of life, nor even in the late autumn, but somewhere, we should say, in the early part of September. Reckoning life as a day, instead of a year, ours is about 1 o'clock P. M. Forney calls us a rare editor, and he may think some of our articles and paragraphs rare, but a good many who read them are very apt to exclaim 'well done!'"

A person threw the head of a goose upon the stage of the Belleville theater. Costu, advancing to the front, said:—"Gentlemen, if any one among yon has lost his head, do not be uneasy, for I will restore it at the conclusion of the performance."

A MERCHANT, on examinging a hogshead of hardware, on comparing it with the invoice, found it all right except, a hammer less than the invoice. "Oh, don't be troubled," said the Irish porter, "sure, the man took it out to open the hogshead with."

HE WOULDN'T.—A three year old boy, the property of my next neighbor, saw a drunken man "tacking" through the street in front of their house.

"Mother," said he, "did God make that man?" She replied in the affirmative.

The little fellow reflected a moment, and then exclaimed: "I wouldn't have done it."

TIMOTHY says the first time he went to courting, he felt as if a pink angle had hauled him down a rainbow with a piece of chain-lighting right smack into a pile of down.

OFFICIAL COUNTY PAPER.

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 8, 1860

DELINQUENT TAX LIST.—With this number we issue a supplement containing the delinquent tax payers of this County.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICE'S.—At the Court of Sessions on Monday last, E. Giddings and I. N. Hoag were elected Associate Justice's

AGENCY.—H. C. Yerby, dealer in Dry Goods and Provisions, at Cacheville, is our authorized Agent. Hereafter our subscribers will find their papers at the above Store every Saturday morning at 8 o'clock on the day of publication.

GRUHLER'S LAGER.—We received on Wednesday last from Mr. Gruhler, 6th street, between J and K streets Sacrameento, a 10 gallon keg of lager, which we return many thanks. We speak knowingly that it is the best we ever drank, and from the crowds that visit his place daily, it must be the opinion of every body else.

CHRISTMAS BALL.—On Christmas Night December 25th, a Grand Ball and Supper will be given at this place in the New Brick Hotel, by W. G. Seely. On reference to the advertisement in another column will be found the list of managers, and from the reputation they bear in such cases we feel assured that it will be the "Ball" of the season. Tickets, including Ball and Supper, $5,00. We understand that arrangements will be made for a Boat to leave Sacramento for this place on the evening of the Ball, and return next morning.

F. AND A. M.—Grafton Lodge No. 141, at a stated communication held on Saturday evening last, elected the following officers for the ensuing Masonic year, viz: J. Baldwin, Worshipful Master; J. W. Snowball, Senior Warden; Louis A. Murdock, Junior Warden; Alex. A. Morehead, Secretary; Wm. G. Seely, Treasurer; and John D. Reid was appointed Senior Deacon; Wm. Murdock, Junior Deacon; and Ephraim Alderson, Tyler.

It is expected that Yolo Lodge No. 81 will join the Lodge at this place, on the 27th inst., in a public installation in their New Hall.

ROBBERY.—On Sunday evening last while Mr. A. Griffith was at Church, his store was entered and his safe opened and robbed of $850 00. The robbers also took all the money that was in the Post Office Department. We understand that the front door of the store and the safe was opened with false keys—no damage was done to either.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—We call the attention of our readers to the new advertisements from Sacramento, in to-day's NEWS. VALUABLE AND INTERESTING BOOKS.—We have received from H. H. Bancroft & Co., of San Francisco the following: Bancroft's California Lawyer and Book of Forms: containing instructions for ordinary transactions in the matter of Deeds, Mortgages, Acknowledgements, &c., &c., with numerous Precedents and Forms; designed for the use of Professional men, county and town officers, Miners, Mechanics and Farmers. It is one of the most valuable books published. Also, Bayard Taylor's Travels at home and abroad. A sketch book of life scenery and men. Also, The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table; by Oliver Wendell Holmes. The above works can be procured by applying to this office. As regards the work and finish of these Books, it is enongh to say that they were published by H. H. Bancroft & Co., 146 Clay street, San Francisco.

CALIFORNIA WEEKLY PICAYUNE—This is the title of a neat little weekly published in San Francisco, by Henry George & Co.

LETTER FROM SACRAMENTO.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6, 1860.

The official vote of the State has been counted, and Lincoln has carried it by 737 votes. The Presidential Electors met in this city yesterday and cast the vote for Lincoln and Hamlin, and elected W. W. Weeks, of this city, to carry the vote to Washington. Weeks stood the champagne at the Union last night to all his friends, and their names were legion. He fully appreciates the honor, and will perhaps stand high within the estimation of the powers that are to be. Should Weeks ask any favor of the new Administration, it is to be hoped he will not be answered as he was by the Chinaman, of whom Weeks asked a drink of water in the mountains. Weeks tells the story himself. On one of the hottest days of the summer he was making a political pilgrimage, riding up one mountain only to find that he had got to ride down again, and then mount another. He was nearly dying of thirst, too, and saw no water, and no habitation. Finally he reached a cabin, and alighted, but found the owner a Chinaman. He asked for water, received it, and was very thankful. He wished to express to the Chinaman the fatigue he had undergone, and commenced by telling him that the hills "were too muchy upee and too muchy downe." The Chinaman, with a look of drollery, pointing to Weeks' large corporosity, replied, "yes, and you too muchy guttee!"

Our Courts are busy this week trying murder cases. On Monday William Price was found guilty of the murder of Pool in the first degree, before the District Court. Before the same tribunal William Williams is being tried for the murder of A. Blanchard. And the Police Court has presented Simonds to the Grand Jury on the charge of murdering J. C. Russell, near Benson's Ferry. Simonds is a young, genteel looking man, and was accompanied by his wife and infant child.

There has been considerable talk in this city for the past week or two about steamboat opposition between this city and San Francisco, and it was announced in the "local items" of one of our dailies that an opposition boat would be running this week. But no opposition boat is running yet. I am informed, however, from a source in which I can place reliance, that the California Steam Navigation Company has for years been paying out money monthly to keep off opposition—that they have, in fact, been paying out heavily, very much after the style in which the old Pacific Mail Steamship Company used to come out to Commodore Vanderbilt, and that they won't stand it any longer than next January. So after the first of January I think that it is altogether probable that then opposition will commence in right good earnest. At all events the California Steam Navigation Company swear they won't pay "nary red" after that time, and they're right, too.

Charles A. Washburn, one of the Republican Presidential Electors, and who was in town to-day, says that he is going to be Collecttor of San Francisco under "Old Abe." He is, as suppose you are aware, brother of the three Washburns in Congress. He feels quite sure of the position; but "there's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip."

Yesterday I attended the semi-annual exhibition of the Collegiate Institute at Benicia, and I wish to say this much that I think the institution worthy the support of all who have boys whom they wish to educate. All the teachers are men of thorough education, and what is more they understand the rare art of rightly imparting instruction. There is no religious humbug about the institution which is much in its favor. There are so many scholars springing up in the State now-a-days, whose only recommendations their preceptors have is that they cannot make a living by preaching, that this fact should be born in mind. The principal of the Benicia Collegiate Institute is C. J. Flatt, a graduate of the Normal School at Albany, New York.

The politicians agitate the subject of who is to be our next United States Senator a little, but the complexion of the next Assembly is so "demd uncertain," that the subject is not ventulated to any extent. I think Edmund Randolph's chances of of an election are the best—not that he will lift a finger to bring about such a result, but because his merits are known, and his qualifications for the position are of such a superior character. Besides, if any man is elected, he has got to be acceptable to more than one party.

Before the Sacramento Library Athenæum last evening, the following resolutions was discussed; "Resolved, That the election of Lincoln is sufficient cause for the secession of the slaves States of this Union." The question was decided in the negative. So I am glad to inform you that this vexed question is settled at last.

The work on the Capitol is progressing slowly but surely. The cement, which is now being laid in the foundation, has been analyzed, and pronounced imperishable. Yours, P.

COURT OF SESSIONS.—On Wednesday last, the case of the People vs. A. J. Scroggins for marking a calf with the intent for stealing the same. The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

HUTCHINGS' MAGAZINE.—Hutchings' Magazine for December has just come to hand. It contains a good deal of interesting matter; in fact it is the best number we have seen.

JUSTICE'S COURT.—D. Schindler will hold Court in this town every Saturday morning.

THE Grand Jury is still in session.

LATER FROM SONORA.—The Mesillia Times of Nov. 22nd, contains later intelligence from Sonora. The Yaquis have risen against their presumed oppressors, and are carrying fire and faggot in every direction. At the hacienda of Chino Gordo, near Hermosillo, they murdered the proprietor, Don Mariano Oviedo, and his brother and eight other men. They also stripped naked three daughters and of Dionisco Gonzales, Remijio Rivers and Manuel Serna, and violated their persons in presence of their horror-stricken parents They took with them into captivity fourteen senoritas. They were pursued by a party of Mexicans, who defeated them and recovered the young ladies.

On the 22d of October the Yaquis, after having been defeated near Hermosillo by a force under the command of Colonel Morales, ran in the direction of the hacienda of El Chanata, a few leagues from that city, and there cowardly murdered three men.

Don Angel Trias, ex-Governor of Chihuahua, is still at Hermosillo. His prospect of connecting El Paso and Guaymas by means of a railway, still hangs fire.

The wheat, corn and sugar crops of Sonora, the present season, are very large and of excellent quality.

D. McC. Murry committed suicide at Healsburg, Sonoma county, December 2d, by taken a large quantity of cyanuret of potassium. He was a daguerrean artist, and therefore had this chemical handy, and knew its deadly qualities. Two of his acquaintances were in his room at the time waiting to have their pictures taken.

NED MCGOWEN has received instructions not to accept a territorial organization from the Repuplican Administration, but should a Southern Confederacy be formed to go with the South.

HIGHWAYMAN HORSEWHIPPED.—Dr. Trap Hagen, while on his way from Iowa Hill, to Forrest Hill, Placer county, recently finding his horse detained by a highwayman gave the latter a lick across the face with a horsewhip, whereupon he broke for the bushes, asking no impertinent questions. For want of pluck the highwayman lost $2 50—all the doctor had.

Arrival of the Pony Express!

Dates to November 24th.

From the Union's Telegraphic Report.

Miscellaneous.

Bell's plurality in Virginia is 1,700 certain.

All but four counties in Missouri give Douglas a majority over Bell 478.

Illinois (official) gives Lincoln, 172,545; Douglas 160,549; Bell, 4,846; Breckinridge, 2,272.

The President completed his annual message November 10th.

A report reached Tampico, November 10th, that Guadalajara had been finally captured. General Marquez was taken prisoner and shot.

At New Orleans, November 18th, the ship J. Enori, loaded with wood, cotton and lime, was burned. Loss, $75,000. The ship Wildcat, for Boston, was damaged by the fire, and two frame houses in the Fourth District burned.

Judge E. C Lester, of the Court of Appeals in Maryland; C. T. Thornburn, son of Grant Thornburn, of New York; and Lady Franklin, will soon embark in the Pacific Mail steamer St Louis for the Pacific, stopping at Rio Janerio.

It is reported that there is disunion in the Cabinet, and Cobb and Thompson threaten to resign if secessionist proceedings are urged, as the President designs in his message. Holt dissents from the President's positions to some extent, but will stay if the President adheres to his position.

General Harney has been ordered to Kansas to exterminate Montgomery's band of outlaws, and will have five hundred men from Forts Riley and Kearney.

One Day Later.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 25th.

Yesterday the Boston bank officers decided to pay balances partly in bills instead of all specie, according to the system adopted in New York. This is generally approved by the citizens, and will enable the banks to discount freely.

The arrangement of the New York Banks is working well.

Yesterday the bill removing restrictions on the banks passed the Georgia Senate.

The suspension of North Carolina banks is legalized by the Legislature.

Farmers Exchange bank, at Charleston, has suspended.

The Mississippi Congressmen have unanimously declared for a Southern Confederacy.

A resolution was offered in the Georgia Legislature, demanding a repeal by the Northern States of laws obstructing the Fugitive Slave Law; also, a Congressional enactment for removing obstructions by Territories to the introduction of all property.

Governor Wise has offered his services to the Governor of South Carolina, if not required in Virginia.

According to the latest news the Kansas reports are much exaggerated. It is said Montgomery's object is only to drive out obnoxious settlers, and has no intention to interfere with the Government officers.

A large detachment of St. Louis military left to-day to protect the western border.

VERA CRUZ, Nov. 21st.—The British Legation at the capital was sacked and robbed of a million of dollars belonging to the British bondholders.

One Day Still Later.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 26, 3 P. M.

The currency is easier to-day.

The New York and Nashville banks suspended to-day.

The Pennsylvania banks suspended last week.

The Arago, with dates from Cowes to November 14th, has arrived.

Negotiations for the capitulation of Gaeta, it is reported, have commenced, Francis refused to evacuate the town, relying upon the strength of the fortress. The siege works are actively continued.

Wheat has declined.

CANCELLING STAMPS.—The Stamp Commissioners, composed of the Governor, Controller, Secretary of State and Treasurer, burned on Tuesday last in the yard of the State House, cancelled stamps to the amount of $1,843,107 96. Of this amount $1,709,995 was issued during Controller Whitman's term, and $133,112 96 during Maloney's term.

FLOUR CONTRACT.—Owens, Moore, and McKee have been awarded the contract to supply the State Insane Assylum with flour for the ensuing six months at $6 75 per barrel. Two other bids were offered at $7 15 and $7 40 respectively.

THE TORTUES OF SING SING.—The tortues of Sing Siug prison exceed by far the punishments inflicted in Neapolitan dungeons, if the details of the "showers" of one desperado there, recently, are true. It was Tom Kelly, a noted ruffian, who suffered. It is said he only took advantage of the keeper's negligence, escaped, was recaptured, and the keepers, actuated by revenge, punished him beyond reason. Kelly was placed naked in a bath, his feet, hands and head being firmly pinoined. The water was allowed to trickle down his face and warm body for a few minutes before the bath fell upon his head. At length it fell. Tom bore it well, not a shiver of the legs, not a muscular movement of the hands or fingers, not a single cry of distress, although he was actually being drowned for about five minutes. "You bear it well, Tom," said one of the keepers, after the first five minutes had elapsed, and tine had been given him to recuperate. "It's awful," was Tom's reply; but I can't ask for mercy." Down came the water again, and for five minutes longer the gurgling sounds of a strangling man were audible, and, when he was exhausted, the cord was let up and the water stopped. A few minutes of release was granted, and down came the gater again, and the scene was more terrible than the worst execution. At length, congestion of the brain was threatened, and a "hiss" from the physician brought the third scene to a close. He had been fifteen minutes under the shower, but had twenty-five minutes of the same to endure; and for the next forty days the same punisnment will be meted out to him, unless he dies under the hands of the keeper. It is described as an awful spectacle to witness this man under the bath. Every muscle contracted and become corded; sometimes the hands would become convulsed, and every nerve strained, when there would follow a relaxation. After Kelly had been showed, and taken to his cell, the keeper turned round, and with a malignant smile, exclaimed, "We'll subdue him." Outsiders, from that single expressive sentence, may guess atthe rule in Sing Sing.

FEARFUL PICTURE—THE UNBURIED DEAD OF SYRIA.—The Syrian correspondent of the Boston Traveler writes that more than ten thousand human bodies still lie upon the sides of Mount Hermon, in full view from the Sea of Galilee and the Mediterranean, upon the plains of Sidon, the ancient Phœnicia, blackening in the sun, and their blood still cries eut to Heaven for vengeance. It is an Oriental custom to leave the murdered dead unburried until justice has been satisfied; and, although in Syria the effect of the climate upon a dead body requires its berial within twenty-four hours of the departure of the sperit from its earthly tenement; these bodies have remained unburried, and in a complete state of perservation. In the court yards of the palaces, in the barracks, and wherever the Christian has fallen, there lies the body now, still awaiting the vengence of Heaven upon the oppressors and slayers of the Christians of Mount Lebanon.—Without entering into an explanation of the physical causes which have produced this mummifievtion, it is sufficient to say that the testimony of all confirms the statement. Wolves and hyenas have, of course, done their work, but in the inclosed premises the presence of the unburied dead remains a silent appeal to Him who declared—"Vengeance is mine, I will repay saith the Lord."

HAD HIM THERE!—A physician passing a marble worker's one morning bawled out to him:

"Good-morning, Mr. W.; hard at work I see. You finish your monument as far as "In the memory of," and then you wait, I suppose, to see who wants a monument next?"

"Why, yes," replied the old man, resting for a few moments on his mallet, "unless somebody is sick, and you are doctoring him—then I shall keep right on."

THOMAS HOOD died composing—and that, too, a humorous poem. He is said to have remarked that he was dying out of charity to the undertaker, who wished to urn a lively Hood.

A CORPULENT clergyman rose, at a public dinner, to return thanks, which he did by laying his hand on his stomach and saying: "We thank Thee for these blessings, so bountifully spread, and for our capacity to enjoy them.
